Draw From Behind

This is predicting that a team will be losing at a point then draw the match.

0:0 predicting that the match will end in a goalless draw.

Home: predicting that the home team will win the match

Home draws from behind: means the away team will be leading then the match ends a draw i.e, the home team equalizes.

For example: In a match, the away team scores first 1-0 (away team is leading), then the home team draws the match by scoring a goal 1-1.

Away: predicting that the away team will win the match

Away draws from behind: means the home team will be leading then the match ends a draw i.e, the away team equalizes.

For example: In a match, the home team scores first 1-0 (away team is leading), then the away team draws the match by scoring a goal 1-1.

Draw and both are behind: means both teams will be leading at a point in the match and it will end a draw.

For example: In a match, the home team scores the first goal 1-0 (home team is leading at this point), then the away team equalizes 1-1. The away team scores another goal, making the result 1-2 (away team is leading at this point), then the home team equalizes and the match ends a draw.

Please note that leading is not in any particular order.
