What does "To Win Either Halves" mean?

Home/Away team to win either halves

To win either halves is to predict that a specific team will win in one of the halves, either the first or second half.

Home to win either halves (YES): This is predicting that the home team will win in one of the halves.

Home to win either halves (NO): This is predicting that the home team will not win in any of the halves. It is the same with saying that the home team will lose or draw in both halves.

Same rule applies to Away team to win either halves
